GLENCOE, Ala. - Two freshmen making their college debut led Middle Tennessee to a second-place finish with one of the top three-round totals in school history at the Chris Banister Gamecock Classic at Silver Lakes Golf Course this weekend. Karisa Akin and Steph Gough carded Top 10 finishes in their debut to help lead the Blue Raiders to their highest finish under second-year coach Chris Adams. Akin closed at 4-over 220 to tie for fourth and Gough shot 7-over 223 for seventh. Akin improved her score in each round and finished with a 1-under 71 Sunday. Gough led the tournament entering the final round after shooting 2-under in Saturday's second round but she slipped on the leader board with a 79 Sunday. "If you would have me the two freshmen would do what they did I may have been a little surprised," Adams said.

"Not that I don't have confidence in them because they are talented but with it being their first tournament and the nerves and pressure, they did a great job. Now the first-tournament jitters are behind us and I think the expectation bar is a little higher." The three-round 905 team total is the lowest for the Blue Raiders under Adams by 10 strokes and all six players were among the top 30 in the field. The 905 total is the sixth-best three-round total in school history. "Going in I knew any one of them could be contending for No. 1 on this team and in the tournament and it prove to be true in this case," Adams said. "Everybody hung in there day-to-day and we eliminated numbers that really kept us low. There is room for improvement but we are headed in the right direction." Seniors Leigh Wilkins and Mallory

Bishop tied for 11th at 13-over, Clara Leathers was 26th with a 235 and Morgan Hale tied for 29th with a 237. Middle Tennessee was 13 shots behind winner Chattanooga and finished eight shots better than third-place Southern Miss. The Blue Raiders may have had a better shot of pressuring Chattanooga for the lead if not for some missed opportunities down the stretch in Friday's first round, however; they bounced back and took advantage by eliminating slip-ups. The Blue Raiders led the tournament with 177 pars. Akin's 40 pars in 54 holes were tops in the tournament, Gough was second with 37 and Wilkins tied for fifth with 35.
