KIAWAH ISLAND, S.C. - Senior Leigh Wilkins made the most of moving day at the Edwin Watts/Kiawah Island Intercollegiate, where she fired a 1-over 73 to vault from 84th after the first round into a tie for 25th following second round action Monday.

Wilkins is 9-over for the tournament and seven shots off the overall lead established by UCF's Elisa Aoki. Wilkins' play spearheaded a showing that enabled Middle Tennessee to remain within striking distance of several top-ranked teams ahead of it.

The Blue Raiders followed their 311 in the first round at Cougar Point with a respectable 24-over 312 at Oak Point during Tuesday's round, which wasn't all bad considering they were playing the course blind. Middle Tennessee is tied for 15th at 623 and five shots out of the Top 10.

"Going into today I thought if we could do about what we did yesterday that would be pretty good because we had not played the course before and the windy, cold conditions made it pretty tough," Blue Raider Head Coach Chris Adams said. "It can be tough sometimes when you haven't seen the course but they battled out there pretty good and now we are in striking distance."

Miami leads the tournament with a 29-over 605, followed by East Tennessee (606) and Central Arkansas (610).

In addition to Wilkins' strong play, newcomer Hannah Weathersby is tied for 39th with a 10-over 154 after slipping to 8-over in the second round. Freshman Karisa Akin is 11-over and tied for 51st. She bounced back with a 76 Monday after opening with a 79. Clara Leathers and Mallory Bishop are 17- and 21-over, respectively.

Wilkins' 73 featured three birdies and 11 pars as she delivered a steady performance in tough conditions. She was even on the front and kept it that way through 14. She fell to 1-over on the day with a bogey on the par-3 15 but came back with three straight pars to complete one of her best rounds as a Blue Raider.

"I was definitely proud of how Leigh played," Adams said. "She managed the course well and it is a course that favors Leigh. She took advantage with a good showing when we really needed it."

The Blue Raiders will return to Cougar Point for Tuesday's final round.
