

May 18, 2010

McNamara resigns

Will pursue other career opportunities

Athletic Communications

MURFREESBORO, Tenn. - Middle Tennessee Director of Athletics Chris Massaro announced today that men's tennis coach David McNamara has resigned his position effective immediately to pursue other opportunities.

"We wish David and his family well as he pursues other career opportunities," said Massaro.

McNamara, who played at Middle Tennessee from 1995 to 1998, took over as head coach in 2007.

"I have enjoyed my relationship with the players and everyone involved with the tennis program during my tenure as a student-athlete, assistant coach, and head coach," said McNamara. "At this time, I feel it is in my best interest to pursue other career opportunities."

The search for a new head men's tennis coach will begin immediately.

Printed on May 23, 2012

Original URL: <http://www.goblueraiders.com/content.cfm/id/46135>

David McNamara resigned as head coach of the Middle Tennessee men's tennis program on Tuesday. ()